JACKSON'S SHOE STORE

CLASS PROPHECY

It's been a long time since the class of '51 parted, but today I shall return to visit them. I, myself, have passed on to the haunts of ghostom. The fact that I have reached the heights of this profession, I feel I owe to my accurate vision, which helps me sight out all hauntable objects. As I receive my day-off papers and permission to converse with humans from the "Big Boss", Hilary Phelps, I start the trip to Greenville. The only reason Hilary didn't come along was that the whole ghost business would fall through without his guidance for the day. On the nights he has off, Hilary still goes to Washington to find whatever ghost females are available.

The first noticeable thing in Greenville is a 105 story building (now the largest in the world) with neon signs flashing "Fulcher Law Institute". When I go in, I find Rodney consulting with his best lawyers, John House and James Ray Roberson, formerly advisor to the president. They tell me that John just finished getting B. T. Batson acquitted after the state accused him of embleżzling $400,000 from the University of North Carolina. He was teaching the class "How To Preserve Health and Live Longer" when the accusation was made.

B. T. tells me that Virginia Perkins is still at Carolina trying to get her degree. He adds that she thought that she would surely get enough passing credits to graduate this year, but that the officials have finally consented to let her be cheer leader and majorette both so she's going to stay on for several more years. Also at Carolina are Johnny Aman and Mac Crawford coaching the Carolina team and becoming renown because their team has won 39 straight games. Johnny is still a bachelor, and, as always, considered the ladies' man, but Mac married Ann McCrary. Many people give Ann credit for her husband's precision skill, saying that she gives him the needed inspiration.

Walter Goor is doing post graduate work at the University and playing football whenever he can get away from his studies. In the game against Duke, he with, of course, the help of a few other stars of the team, such as Kent Lee, Johnny Mervin, Bobby Lee and Billy Woolfolk, scored five touchdowns. After he receives his master's degree, he plans to teach English literature in Russia.

Across the street from Rodney's office, I see the "Ormond Jr. Wholesale Company". Lyman tells me that he now distributes for the entire state, which he attributes to the wizardry of Joel Bunch, who is his financial advisor. Joel has figured a way for Lyman to make 100% profit on things and still be able to charge lower prices. Margaret Ormond (formerly, Margaret Fleming) serves as Lyman's secretary and supervises the business. Milton Foley and his wife, the former Joan Allen, are the company's foremost traveling salesmen. Joan was never content to be left at home, so she helps persuade the grocers to buy while Milton handles the business deals. John David Cannon, owner of "Cheaper Foods Grocery", and Lyman have formed the club, Why Not To Patronize Chain Grocery Stores, with John David's wife, Margie Tripp, presenting the idea in national tours.

As I talk to Margaret, she tells me that Bob Watson has formed an internationally famous circus. His most noted achievement in the way of sideshows is the act, "The Thin Man Duet", starring himself and Bruce Strickland. Larry Flye, who is also with the show, has immortalized his act by rearranging currently popular songs. His versions normally outsell the original copy, but his most called for number is still "Good Night, Irene". Between her shows at the opera, Barbara White helps him sing the songs.

As I continue my rounds, who should I find operating a dancing school but Mary Ann Waldrop and Jarvis Tripp. They explain to me that they themselves teach only ballroom dancing, since that is what they enjoy. (Mary Ann is still teaching her students to "be-bop", even though it went out of style fifteen years ago.) Their tap dancing department has become quite popular under the supervision of Peggy Martin and Billie Jean Simpson, with Jackie Sears playing the piano for them at $10 an hour.

Carolyn Clapp has lost twenty pounds since her school days and now teaches toe dancing. Under her brilliant direction, Peggy Nicholls and Mollie Hester have become "The Hollywood Gracefulettes", and Janie Wingate, Helen Smith, Dolores Harper, and Eleanor Stoneham have become chorus girls at the Roxy (New York, not Greenville theatre).

As the sun goes down, I decide to walk out along Dickinson Avenue. Instead of the filling stations and other various things that used to line the street there now stands an enormous track for stock car racing. One of the cleaning boys tell me that Ann Sutton owns and runs the business and often competes in the activities. Some of her more renown drivers are Joyce Stokes, who recently won a medal for her daring feats, Dot Tucker, Vernicia Haddock, and "Doogie" Larkins. Only the most careful and cautious drivers are hired for this job I was told.

On further out I find Lewis Howe mowing the lawn of a six acre estate. He explains that he owns the house, but lately has lost his fortune; therefore he can't afford a yard man. Lewis had been mayor for the last ten years and was accumulating quite a large sum by "juggling the books", but his secretary, Doris Vandiford, who did all his mathematical figuring, turned state's evidence on him. Lewis and his wife, Joyce Smith, had to pay back the debts by selling their many cars.

Joe Clark has rented the back fifteen rooms and the four acre back yard of Lewis' house for his baseball league called "The Hair Cuts". Joe originated this name because the team's mascot is Charlie Mitchell's porcupine hair style, and "Babe" Brady (once called Billy), having hit 61 homeruns this year, is Joe's chief homerun king. Earl Jones, Doug Allen, and John Sideris, whose arguing has talked many of the umpires into safeties for his team, all started out playing for the Greenville Greenies and have so rapidly risen in the ranks of baseball that they are now Joe's star players. When I mentioned the fact that the "Haircuts" were so nationally famous, Joe modestly blushed and told me this was probably true because of the endless publicity Jimmy Dillingham has been giving him. Jimmy, by the way, has become such a great sports writer that his columns are carried by all the large newspapers in the country. Because of his faithfulness to his hometown newspaper, Jimmy donates his column to the "Daily Reflector" every week.

Ah, but Greenville has really grown since I saw it last. Now in place of the old familiar Respess Barbecue Restaurant there stands a massive modernistic night club, the El Lassitaft. Walking into the throngs of "night clubbers", I find that Sue Lasitter and Zack Taft, married ten years with three children, own the place. Zack feels that Sue can cause the guest to enjoy themselves so much that he made her the official hostess, and he runs the secret gambling room in the back.

Sue says that their greatest attraction is their torch singer, Bobbie Winberry, and that their entertainers, Doris Seabock, Rachel Pollard, Mattie Stancill, and Verona Whichard draw nightly movie star scouts from Hollywood, but they never feel they can accept any contracts because the salaries can't compare with those they are now drawing. Janet Waters and Patsy Smith have become skilled in running the roulette wheel and because of their striking appearances many of the wealthy professional gamblers have proposed.

Badly in need of fresh air, I walk across the highway where I find the Dogwell Veterinarian Home with the owners none other than the high school sweethearts, Floyd Hendrix and Frances Greene. The head nurse, Suggie Sugg shows me the hospital and explains that Floyd's theory is that each dog requires a private room and should be treated like humans in order to recuperate fully. Elizabeth Sugg often plays the piano for the dogs' recreation and Charlie Ann Sutton, Mary Frances Langley, and Doris Mozingo divide their time between establishing good will between the dogs and planning all diets.

In this home Floyd prides himself on the handsome dogs he builds up. James Clark and Jake Stanley have both made fortunes by painting portraits of the patients and by having a television program over CBC of these versatile dogs, Ed Mayo and Earl Daughtery have received enough money to retire on.

On the way out of this enormous structure I meet two of the nurses, Betty Jane Bunch and Peggy Forrest, who tell me of the large financial business concern this outfit is wrapped up in. Augusta Overton handles all of the transactions and Melba Andrews, Maude Knox, and Doris Dawson travel to all parts of the country and even to Europe in order to find the most healthful foods for Floyd's customers.

Back in town the bright lights seem to be centered on Peggy Cox's florist because her business is so great that her establishment has to remain open all hours. I promptly find the reason for this monopoly when I see Frances Sigmon inside selling her most-called-for article, black orchids. I am told that she alone has sold 300 black orchids and 250 white orchids in the last week. She leaves the task of selling lowly purple orchids to Linda Ipock and Allene May and the modeling of any such corsages to Shirley Clark.

In the "Home Town" drugstore, run by Dixie Lewis, Dixie relates to me the fame that has reached Ralph Smiley and Carl Worsley, who are great orators and scholars. Louis Zappas has become a traveling salesman for Moore's Men's Clothing Store and has established a famous name. Virginius Haymes comes in while I am drinking my soda and tells me of some of his exploits. He beat Artie Shaw's record by marrying six times, but finally he decided to settle down, so he went back to his old love, Edwina McMullan.

As I start to leave for home I realize the one person I have missed is Coletta Lahr. She, I am informed, is now hired as a tutor for the president's young son. And thus, the fates of all my old classmates are known so I happily return to my haunts.

BELK-TYLER COMPANY

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

To ye, O haunters of this prison,
We leave our ghostly memories:
Our boos and shouts,
Our chilling screams,
The weird contortions of our schemes,
The phantoms of our aspirations,
Of our dreams and contemplations,
Of our proud accomplishments.
All of these we leave behind us
To those who follow in our haunts.

1. Shirley Clark leaves her height to Joe Ann Timberlake.
2. Peggy Cox leaves giving orchids to all her sweet (?) teachers.
3. Zack Taft leaves all the football equipment to the next sucker—football manager, that is—
4. Vernicia Haddock leaves her parking space to Peggy Dunn.
5. Billy Woolfolk leaves his shortness to George Sideris.
6. Carolyn Clapp leaves her figure to Ann James.
7. Charles Mitchell and Kent Lee leave—Hurray!!
8. Joan Allen leaves her hair shears to any other "scissors crazy" girls.
9. Doris Dawson and Betty Jane Bunch leave their size to Dorothy Brily and Virginia Jones.
10. Hilary Phelps leaves his engaging smile to Fletcher Murray.
11. John Sideris and Ralph Smiley leave their positions on the bench to any "E" string boys in hopes that they will keep it warm.
12. Dolores Harper and Doris Seabock leave to join their husbands, Roland and Andy.
13. Mollie Hester leaves her freckles to Jo Ann Johnson.
14. James Ray Robinson leaves his scholastic records to David Gilbert hoping he won't let it down.
15. Dixie Lewis leaves nothing, she needs it all!

76. Walter Goor leaves his fleetness to John Lindsey Winstead.
77. John David Cannon and Margie Tripp and Edwina McMullan and Virginus Haynes leave making plans for the future.
78. Jimmy Dillingham leaves his ability to get along with Miss Greene to Wayne Smiley.
79. Mary Ann Waldrop leaves her admirers to any girl lucky enough to keep them.

CLASS HISTORY

With sadness and joy intermingled, we walk across the stage toward those long anticipated diplomas. Even though we have all put on a big show about how much fun it was going to be to leave "ye ole prison" it can never be said that everyone of our good times and most important, our achievements, aren't heavy on our minds.

I well remember back in the eighth grade how fearful and shy we were, frightened by upper classmen and trembling at a glance given by a senior. This stage lasted for a year. By the time we reached the ninth grade we had become quite veteran-like and bold, and now felt it our task to be superior in the fact of the "lowly" eighth graders. At our first class meeting, a new and different thing to us, there was the tense excitment of the battle of battles. Lyman Ormond, Margaret Fleming, Augusta Overton, and Johnny Aman came through to lead our class through the year. I never will forget the way our advisor, Mrs. Bowen, helped us with our dance that year and with her suggestions we chose to follow the traditional theme of "Spring Follies" for the affair. Decked with pine trees and flowers the whole auditorium seemed to reek with the spring season. It was a big moment for me and every other freshman when we graduated from junior high to senior high.

When the sophomore year rolled around we had learned pretty much about what was going on all around us, the facts about "apple polishing", and what was and what wasn't tolerated in G.H.S. In other words, we freely lived up to the definition of a sophomore (or wise-fool). Aside from the lighter and more trivial things, we learned important, essential things when we, led by Augusta Overton, Margaret Fleming, Janet Waters, and Floyd Hendrix, had to work so hard to make the Coronation Ball a success. Nevertheless, none of us begrudged our laborious task when our auditorium was transformed into a night club on that all important night. Our theme was carried through with a torch singer, dances, and a skit. Extra curricular activities became a must and through these associations our leaders were established.

I suppose our next step toward commencement, that of the junior year, was the most eventful and busiest. Ordering class rings, selling magazine subscriptions, our first junior-senior banquet and dance, all made up part of the restless nine months. Our class rings were ruby stones set in gold with a picture of G.H.S. on one side and the town library on the other—Perhaps those of us that traded our rings with a boy, or girl friend, thought we were the only appreciative ones, but those that had rings that fitted, for some reason, also began holding their ring finger in a more conspicious manner.

When a group of us reminisce, we still proudly talk about the fact that we, led by the salesmanship of Lyman Ormond and Lewis Howe, sold more magazine subscriptions than any class before us. Originating from a brain storm of Lewis Howe, and a great amount of toil, put out by many of us, the junior-senior arrived in full-fashion, depicting a "Dreamers' Jungle." Lions and tigers, monkeys, and even pink elephants peeped out from behind the many bushes and the realistic pool, with a few lazy alligators floating around, proved refreshing. When I think about it now it seems that the four members due much of the credit for this perfect affair were our class officers, Rodney Fulcher, Margaret Fleming, Janet Waters, and Joel Bunch.

We finally made it up to the last rung of the ladder toward graduation as we took that important position of being seniors. Somehow we didn't feel a bit more dignified, but whenever there was work to be done we settled down and completed it. Our first project was that of building up our treasury by selling stationery. In celebration of the yuletide we presented a Christmas play in chapel at which time we presented our yearly gifts to Willie, LaUna and Curtis, our janitors. The most important of our undertakings of the year was the Tau and through the hard work of the annual staff led by Ann McCrary, as editor-in-chief, and Floyd Hendrix, as business manager, this publication was made possible. Chosen to lead our class through all these happenings of the ultimate year were Lewis Howe, Milton Foley, Barbara White, and Joel Bunch.

The entire graduating class threw aside all thoughts of work and went to the vast number of parties given them on Senior Day. Climaxing this day there was Awards Night and accompanying the awards the seniors presented a drama.

Well—here we are tonight leaving behind Greenville High School but always we will possess memories of a momentous high school career.

LOYAL SUPPORT

G. H. S. ALMA MATER

Hail Dear Old Greenville High
This is our song to you
Long may your banner be
Crowned with victory
We pledge our loyalty
And our sincerety
We will be true to thee,
Hail Greenville High

DEAR OLD GREENVILLE

Dear old Greenville
Loyaly we stand united
Rough and ready
Fight the fight with all your might and win-Hey!
Firm and steady
Eyes upon the ball always
Onward to victory, proud our future days
Fight the fight, Green and White
Onward we're pushing to win the goal
Then here goes, on your toes,
Let them know that we're death on foes
Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah!

WE'RE LOYAL TO YOU

We're loyal to you, Greenville High!
We're green and white, Greenville High!
We'll back you to stand
'Gainst the best in the land
For we know you have sand,
Greenville High, Rah! Rah!
So crack out that ball, Greenville High,
We're backing you all, Greenville High!
Our team is our fame-protector;
On, boys! For we expect a victory
From you, Greenville High.

The Printer

Without him... tyrants and humbugs in all countries would have their own way... He is a friend of intelligence and thought... a friend of liberty... of freedom... of law... indeed the friend of every man who is a friend of order... Of all inventions, of all discoveries in science and art... of all the great results in the wonderful progress of mechanical energy and skill... the printer is the only product of civilization necessary to the existence of free men.
